Just a few lines in appreciation of the benefit I have received from taking Verno. I had rheumatism in my back about ten years ago and was gradually getting worse until I was scarcely able to get up out of a chair and work was almost impossible. After taking two boxes I was entirely cured and can be seen every day going to Edmonton and talking to patients and to many others who could also give evidence as to my condition, both before and after taking Verno.

Thursday, November 24, 1923—a red letter day in the history of Leduc, the new electric street lamps being lighted for the first time. That with the removal of nearly all the telephone polls on Main Street gives the town a vastly improved appearance. There is still a lot to work to be done in connection with the new plant, but the work is being pushed forward as rapidly as possible, one of the judges in the test of progress held at the fair has pointed out. Owing to permission to cross the tracks having to be obtained from the C.P.R. no connection has been made as yet with the street lights in that part of the town.—Reportative.

BAD HEADACHES FOR TWO YEARS

Mr. Ernest Farquhar, Rose St., Dartmouth, N.S., writes:—"I have been troubled for two years with bad headaches, but found no relief. I was telling a friend of mine about the bad pains in my head and he suggested Laxa-Liver Pills. I tried many pills and powders, but I thought I would give the Laxa-Liver Pills a trial. I was quite pleased with them so I took two more, and now I don't feel any pain. I am very grateful to you. I am very thankful to Laxa-Liver Pills and I can recommend them to everyone."

LIVELY INTEREST IS SHOWN IN EXHIBITS AT INTERNATIONAL

Alberta's exhibits are now all down at Chicago ready for the live stock show and also for the hay and grain show, and several of the exhibitors, government and the like, in other words, are either there or on their way, leaving last for Chicago during the week.

The veterans of them all is Alex Galbraith, who this year attended his 39th International, where he is again to be seen as one of the judges on the grain and feed contest. He will go on to eastern Canadian shows, where he will also act.

Prof. H. G. Cutler, of the department of field husbandry at the University of Alberta, is also among those who are there, and he has accepted an invitation from the superintendent of the international hay and grain show to act on the committees of judges on small grains and seeds. He is also president of the International Crop Improvement association, and will preside over the annual meeting which is to be held Nov. 25.

Chas. Yale, Cranbrook, after a very successful week, exhibiting at the Calgary winter fair, left for Chicago where he will judge on Shorthorn. Mr. Yale's services have been requested at a number of occasions to judge at some of the biggest of the U.S. fairs. He also sits on the committee of judges with their steer class are: W. C. Short, Edmonton; Tom Hamilton, Innisfail; Wm. McDonald, Dayton; C. B. Creswell, Edmonton; Jas. MacMillan and Chas. P. Beeching, Calgary.

Mr. G. Campbell, president of the Canadian Stockmen's Association, and Mr. G. Campbell, president of the stock commissioners; N. J. Christie, Calgary; Chas. Brown, Didsbury; W. L. Carlyle, Calgary; W. W. Sharp, Stettler; and D. S. Fleming, Sedgewick—Market Breeder.

CAPTURING A NEW MARKET

Canada's flour is the standard of the world. This is pretty generally admitted. The writer knows one citizen of the United States, who, on every visit to Canada, has been greatly impressed by the strict instructions from his wife, a number of bakes of bread, she claiming that no bread obtained in the United States can approach that made from Canadian flour. As an instance of the increasing popularity of the Canadian flour, it is interesting to note that Dr. A. H. Stafford, born in Whistler, but for some time past domiciled in Vancouver, recently said that until the steamships "Canadian Forester" and "Canadian Fisher" of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine service, came into Kingston, the shipper never heard of the flour, but that all the flour came from the United States. Now it all comes from Canada. This very valuable market for Canadian products has been captured by three ways, Dr. Stafford affirms; first, the fact that Canada has ships to deliver it there; second, the quality of the flour is equal, if not better, than that of the people of Jamaica desire a closer commercial and social relation with the people of Canada.

EASTERN HOLSTEINS FOR ASYLUM FARM

The purchase of 73 head of high-class Holstein cows in Ontario for the use of the Alberta mental asylum at Ponoka has just been made by the provincial department of agriculture.

When asked Friday morning regarding the purchase, Harry George Headley said it was necessary to obtain the best quality of milk obtainable for the mental patients at the asylum and the fine type of cows obtained in the east would assure this supply.

In reply to reports of criticism of the department for not buying milk cows in Alberta, Headley said it would be difficult to purchase in the province this number of cows of the quality obtained in the east, for persons owning such animals would not part with them at the reasonable price paid for the herd in Ontario. While Mr. Headley said he was unable to give the exact figure paid, the information would be available in a few days.

Then Senses Vanished

A Glasgow doctor had been called to see a man who was very ill. He examined him, and said to the nurse, "You must watch this case very closely and tell me all the symptoms when I come back in the morning."

The man became very ill in the night and in fact a fit of convulsions in his fever.

When the doctor returned in the morning he said to the nurse, "Tell me exactly what happened after I left."

"You were hardly out of the room," she began, "when he said, 'When did that old fool say he was coming back again?'" Those were the last sensible words the patient spoke.

From opposition by many Liberal candidates comes one candidate and the supporters of the Greenback party, when they return o their respective ridings for endorsement, was expressed by Hon. Charles Stewart, exponent of Alberta, and now leader of the Liberal opposition in the provinces.

TRANQUILITY

Though evils breed this poor globe, and wrong makes right an also ran, I do not yell or tear my robe, or follow noisy plan; I'd make the right in secret, but you have taught me this great truth—it never helps to run amuck. The agitators who uproar on kegs and boxes, in the mart, and shriek that doom is drawing near, unless we tear all things apart, would help to bring about the end of the world. In solemn hour, strict, one thing is true, one truth is straight—it never helps to run amuck. I pin my faith to wise old boys who make the good things come to pass who don't believe in blowing drums or sounding brass. The world is not to be won over by noise, white agitators now and then, and watching them has taught me this—never helps to run amuck.—Walt Mason.

Having entered the Aldermanic contest, I take this opportunity of asking you for your support. I believe that your interests are mine. If elected, I will do my best for the welfare of our city.

ENGLAND PLEASED WITH THE RESULT OF CONFERENCE

Washington, Dec. 2—"Great Britain is likely to find herself in a position to be completely satisfied with the results of the present conference, that is because her objects in entering the conference were so simple and so clear."

This statement was made to a group of Canadian newspapermen today by Mr. George L. Shandro, who was the chief spokesman in the Washington conference. During the course of the latter, this spokesman, who occupies a high position in the British official party, gave a very clear exposition of the British Empire's position in regard to the conference. "The British objects in entering the conference, he said,

"First—to add to the prevention of a possible conflict between Japan and the United States."

"Second—determination to cement the Anglo-American alliance."

The spokesman was unable to say whether the representatives of other nations appeared to find it difficult to understand the British attitude, he said.

There was an idea that the British had some selfish interest to serve and commented that they were "sabotage."

"Sabotage" but it was gradually being revealed to the world that the British Empire had no axe to grind in connection with any of the questions that are being dealt with at the conference. The British Empire has been accused of trying to make fresh trouble for either or other motives. The spokesman stands ready to aid any more which will make for the peace of the world, and as the successful outcome of the conference would be a mighty step in that direction, the British were gladly cooperating with the other nations in the effort to achieve success.

The cementing of the friendship between Japan and the United States would be the greatest possible preventative of war, this spokesman continued. To a great extent the destiny of the world lies in the hands of the great English speaking peoples. Canada had played an important part in promoting the spirit of goodwill between the old country and the United States, as she stood in the position of interpreter of the one to the other. He believed that the United States, he believed, would enjoy a closer sentiment of friendship between the two countries and this should prove one of its greatest benefits to mankind.

FURS—Season on minkarts has opened; on winter rate prices will be 75c and $1; full remounts at 6c and 70c.

The Royal Bank at Hay Lakes was totally destroyed by fire Monday morning. The building which was a small structure owned by Mr. Larson, the general merchant of the place, bank books and papers were all saved, but the contents of the safe were lost.

Mr. Julia McMillan, North Sydney, N.S., writes: "I was so troubled with pain in my back I did not know what to do."

I was on my feet all day and my back ached so tight I could scarcely walk up one flight of stairs. I went to Dr. Dan's Kidney Clinic, and after taking three boxes I am as well as ever, and can walk up several flights of stairs without pain. I am telling my friends of what "Dan's" does for me."

See that our trade mark the "Maple Leaf" is on every box of "Dan's" medicine.

Price, $1.00 a box at 25c per box or mailed direct to you at price of $1.00. Address: Dan's, Ltd., Toronto, Ont.

SHANDRO'S SEAT IS DECLARED VACANT BY JUSTICE WALSH

That the election of Andrew S. Shandro by acclamation to represent the constituency of Wetaskiwin in the House of Commons was declared null and void was the judgment of Mr. Justice Walsh, handed down in the supreme court here on Friday evening. By this decision, Mr. Shandro is unseated and a new election will be ordered.

The learned justice declared that his returning officer erred in relying on the nomination papers of Chornousch and characterized his efforts as a deliberate attempt to prevent the Whitford seat to Shandro.

In his finding in the case, Mr. Justice Walsh held that the nomination papers presented by Bentellies, agent to the returning officer, even though the papers did not contain the addresses and occupations of the nominators and that these papers were not actually witnessed when the electors signed off, did not render the nomination invalid.

He also held that notwithstanding the rejection of the new nomination on the technicality of the mis-spelling of Chornousch's name this man was properly nominated:

CIVIC ELECTION ADDRESSES

To The Electors

Of The City of Wetaskiwin
Ladies and Gentlemen:
I offer my services as Alderman to serve in your City's administration. It elected, my endeavor will be to serve you well.

Yours truly,
Alex Cumming

To The Electors

Of The City of Wetaskiwin
Wetaskiwin, Dec. 19, 1921.
Ladies and Gentlemen:

Having entered the Aldermanic contest, I take this opportunity of asking you for your support. I believe that your interests are mine. If elected, I will do the utmost for the welfare of our City.

Yours respectfully,
Geo. G. Kelley

To The Electors

Of The City of Wetaskiwin
Ladies and Gentlemen:

My name appears before you as a candidate for Alderman, and I take this means and opportunity of asking you for your vote and influence at the polls on December 12, 1921.

Should I succeed in being elected my wishes are "to provide for the local needs and interests of the City, and to encourage public judgments and improvements" where necessary. Be lieve me, I am,

Yours truly,
A. H. Liveridge

To The Electors

Of The City of Wetaskiwin
Ladies and Gentlemen:

At the request of a large number of ratepayers I have consented to allow my name to go before the people for Aldermanic honors in the approaching election. I have resided in this city for a number of years, my interests are bound up with this city, and if elected I promise to spend the power at the best of my ability. Under the conditions at present existing I consider a policy of economy is of first importance. I believe that a considerable saving could be effected in certain of the Civic Departments without impairing the services rendered and efficiency with economy will be my policy.

Yours sincerely,
E. H. Pendleton

To The Electors

Of The City of Wetaskiwin
Ladies and Gentlemen:

At the very urgent request, by petition and otherwise, of a large number of ratepayers I have consented to become a candidate for Mayor of this City for 1922.

We are entering upon one of the most critical periods of our history and to many with efficiency must be rigidly enforced and whatever changes to that end are necessary, I will not hesitate to recommend and support them.

Conditions at the power plant must be improved and as other branches of the city's service, so the very best possible results can be obtained for the ratepayers and all placed on a strictly business basis.

Taxation and assessment must be made as equitable as possible and all our regulations fully and promptly made.

Prompt action must be taken to dispose of the best advantage to the lands reverting to the city for non-payment of taxes so that they will be again placed on the tax roll and become revenue producing.

If you think your best interests will be served by electing me, please believe my experience in public affairs will be of value to you, I will be pleased to receive your support and influence on Monday next.

Yours sincerely,
H. J. Montgomery.

To The Electors

Of The City of Wetaskiwin
Having been waited upon by a large number of ratepayers requesting me to allow my name to come before the electors as a Candidate for Alderman in the forthcoming election, and after considering same, I have accepted the nomination.

Now that I am out in this civic contest which takes place next Monday, I wish it to be known that I have not pledged myself to any certain clique, nor have I accepted the nomination to form a party to any ticket. I am out as a candidate absolutely independent.

To be an Alderman of the City is not new to me, as I have had the honor of occupying a seat in the Council Chamber for four years previously, so that the work should not be new to me. To be an Alderman, however, I am not going to make a lot of promises which are usually made by candidates before an election, and which are, as a rule, never fulfilled after they are elected, but should you, however, fit to elect me, for the next two years, I will promise you this much, that it will be my ambition at all times to serve the City to the best of my ability.

Yours truly,
J. P. Johnson

To The Electors

Of The City of Wetaskiwin
I offer myself as a candidate in the approaching Municipal election. I do so simply because I think with my knowledge of civic matters my services on the council will be of benefit to the city.

I fully realize the feeling among you citizens and taxpayers why you consider that you are called upon to pay as taxes. You are called upon to blame the present council for the state of affairs.

Well, "there is always room for improvement," and this can be said of the Council as well as of anything else. Please consider your choice carefully when you consider your votes.

It is an easy matter to get the city into a very much worse condition than privations at present.

At the annual meeting a considerable amount of enmity was shown between the city solicitor. I am not at all in favor of the city solicitor, but just a few words from the city council in retaining him. He is a well paid official. We are all agreed to that, but in every instance he has brought in results commensurate with the amounts paid. For instance, when we went to the city in 1920, there were arrears of taxes due to the city to the extent of $44,382.00. The council handed these to Mr. Knox with instructions to force collections. By February, 1921, he had collected over $28,000.00. But he did not make any money while doing this and may account for some of the animosity shown. The collections of these arrears cost us in commissions, postage, etc., $740.00. On the other hand this amount of money coming in at the time it did, enabled us to keep the expenses at the bank under current expenditure and to have an interest on the surplus in the bank amounting to the extent of $142.00. The savings to the city in not having to borrow and pay interest coupled with the amount of interest actually obtained would more than pay the commissions paid to the city solicitor. Also consider when we went to the city, if I elected, I promise to spend the power at the best of my ability. Under the conditions at present existing I consider a policy of economy is of first importance. I believe that a considerable saving could be effected in certain of the Civic Departments without impairing the services rendered and efficiency with economy will be my policy.

Yours sincerely,
E. H. Pendleton

COMMUNICATION

(We do not necessarily endorse the sentiments advanced by this or any other correspondent under this heading.—Ed.)

Editor of The Times:

Dear Sir:

I refer to the personal attack made on me by Mr. Montgomery at the meeting of ratepayers last Friday night, and I wish to explain to those who are not already aware of the fact that he is really a scoundrel. Mr. Montgomery has been emitted again and again that he could not expect to be fair to satisfy reasonably in any matter in which I am involved. Mr. Montgomery did not make himself aware of the facts so far as my charge against the city council are concerned and if he has done so he failed to be fair to have his slighted right to have not spoken the way he did.

Four years ago the City Council unanimously invited me to accept the position of City Solicitor, for which I had not applied, and during that time I have always acceded to any request made of me to do my duty to the best of my ability. I have always stated my willingness to have my bills taxed by the proper officer. During the six years that Mr. Montgomery was on the council before he never once had the solicitor's bills taxed.

In connection with the appointment to the Municipal Finance Commission for an extension of time in connection with the City's indebtedness both to the bondholders and to the Bank, I was engaged in the work for a period of two years. The extension of time work is fully disclosed in the documents rendered to the council. For my services in that respect I received fees to the extent of $550.00.

The Municipal Finance Commission ordered the City to pay to the solicitor for the next five days the sum of $600.00 for the bondholders did not. I am satisfied, do one tenth of the work I did and yet the Commission thought the $600.00 a fair charge to allow him.

I am confident that no other lawyer would have accepted a smaller fee for the work I did than I received.

This year, the C.P.R. appealed to the Judge against its assessment. The O.P.R. solicitor from Calgary, and four of expert witnesses appeared in connection with the appeal.

I had the assistance of the City Assessor and City Clerk. I charged a fee of $36.00.

Some years ago I was called upon to pay as taxes. You are called upon to blame the present council for the state of affairs.

I fully realize the feeling among you citizens and taxpayers why you consider that you are called upon to pay as taxes. You are called upon to blame the present council for the state of affairs.

I regret to have to say it but it is a fact that there will not be any reduction of taxation, no matter who is in charge at the City Hall, and I am satisfied that next year there will be an increase in taxation. The ratepayers should always remember that notwithstanding the amount of money which may be made by candidates for election to the City Council, the Municipal Finance Commission is in full charge of the financial position of Wetaskiwin and it will control the action of the Council and they should also remember that the bondholders have firmly set their face against the City. They hope now more money on debts and that any promises made by candidates to get over present difficulties by borrowing money are promises which cannot be carried out.

Yours truly,
Alex. Knox.

Editor of The Times:

Mr. Montgomery stated at the meeting on Friday evening that if he is elected to the Mayoralty, debentures will be sold to cover expenditure in connection with electric light that will be required for the coming year.

An extract from the report of Mr. Nash, who sounded the bondholders of Wetaskiwin debentures or their representatives shows how impossible it is for Wetaskiwin to float debentures at the present time.

A long period of suffering due to a most malignant form of appendicitis, following an operation at the Wetaskiwin hospital, Floyd Atherton Eaton, late of Yesterford, passed peacefully away on Thursday, December 1, at the Wetaskiwin hospital at the age of 35 years. He had been operated on that the operation was quite successful, but complications set in, and after some five weeks illness, he succumbed to the fatal illness. Mr. Eaton's father, Rev. Mr. Eaton, of Iowa, was at the bedside of his son till the last. The bereaved family of Mr. Eaton was very highly respected and in the funeral arrangements, Rev. Mr. Eaton had charge of the memorial service. Mrs. F. A. Eaton will remain here a while with her son, Mr. Jeff. Cole.

MILLET

The following ratepayers have been nominated for councillors for the ensuing year, 1922.

Alexander Martin, Liveridge,

John Pendleton, Liveridge,

Victor Hawley, Millet,

Augustus Parker, Millet,

John Dianey, Postmaster,

A. P. Mitchell, Auctioneer.

The last three named were 1921 council members.

The election takes place on Monday, December 14th, between the hours of 8 a.m. and ten p.m.

The Young People enjoyed a very pleasant time on the Pipestone Creek Tuesday night at the Christie skating carnival. Everybody was royally entertained by the hosts. Mrs. Christie gave a great deal of time to the arrangements.

The Women's Institute turned out in large numbers to the never-to-be-forgotten banquet given by the members to their better halves. Long before the time of the opening there was a line of ladies waiting for Flynn's to open the doors. The hall was overflowing. Very few people were unable to get to the luncheon and those that were unavoidably detained from being present missed a big treat.

The members of the Women's Institute who to work in the community and help in every way those that benefit indirectly, those six young ladies who waited on table, the ladies who decorated the hall and one and all who helped to make the affair a success it was.

After the luncheon was over speeches were made and the guests were the order of the evening. After the speeches everyone joined in the community singing and games, the gathering breaking up at two o'clock on Saturday morning.

Nomination of councillors took place on Monday morning, and parties began to form to see who would be the winners.

John West's store is now open and is doing a good office business.

We are longing for that day when our own town risk, Never mail, will soon be Christmas, and we may have lights.

The Ladies' Aid society will hold a sale of trimmings, hats, home-made articles, etc., for the benefit of the Red Cross.

The sale will be held in Eastwood's hardware store. Come and see the best of values for reasonable prices—but come in and have a delicious hot drink. The ladies of Miller extend to you a hearty invitation.

Her Ticket

(By James H. Lewis)

"Dad, will you give me two dollars?" said a hopeful young voice up the stairs.

"What for, John?"

"I'm going to take Hazel to the senior banquet, dad, and I need the money".

John Harrison, Jr., son of the high school principal and president of the class, stood at the bottom of the stairs. He was a tall, thin boy, with a slender and small physique; though small John did not know or care. All he knew was that the supply had never failed him. He stood rubbing the banister with his gloved hand. "Can I have it, father?" he called again.

"Don't know, John. We'll talk it over tonight."

"But I've got to have it now. They are going to sell tickets this noon and the first buyers get the best tables."

"Why can't you take another table, John?"

"I can't, dad!" exclaimed John. "I'm class president! I've got to sit at the best table! The committee won't guarantee my seat if I buy late, but I have the right to buy the first tickets."

"Then you had better come upstairs for a while, John," said his father slowly. "I want to say something to you."

John pulled off his cap, sent it sailing to the window seat, and dashed up the twenty-two carpeted stairs. His father was looking out of the library window. Without turning, he spoke as John entered.

"Well, my boy, what about it?"

"What's the matter, dad? Why all the trouble? Aren't you going to let me have the money?"

"I don't know. How badly do you want it?"

"I just wanted..."

"Well, I suppose I like her."

"When did you start going with her?"

"Oh, I don't know, a while ago."

"If you had money of your own, John, would you take her to the banquet?"

"You bet I would!"

"Then why not earn it?"

"Oh—"

John whistled, balanced the chair on his rear legs, shoved his hands into his pockets and leaned a hand on his hip. He was thinking—certainly—but he wanted to think, and he could think better when his hands were occupied with something. To earn the money had not occurred to him.

"I was just thinking," said his father, "that if I paid for Hazel's ticket, she ought to go with me. It's usually the teacher, you know, for a lady to go with the man who pays for her ticket."

"But father!"

"And since you're counting on entering her yourself instead of letting me do it, I would suggest that you don't go up to the banquet alone. I want you to fix this in your mind, my boy. I'm ready to pay for your school, for your home and for your clothes; but when it comes to girls, they're yours, John, not mine. They go with you, not with me. They are interested in you, not me. And somehow you've got to pay for them. We had better begin now rather than later."

John listened soberly. His father did not often talk in this way, but when he did John knew that he meant what he said. His father seemed to stand above him, like a giant among pygmies. He did not forever keep nagging at him, nor did he interfere much with John's plans unless he came to him for advice. But once in a while he did, and when he was talking now, John's heart sank.

These last talk of a kind had occurred nearly a year before. Then they had discussed the relative values of grades and basketball. John had recited often since that time. He did not play the game any less; indeed he was the star forward on the team; but when he was not actually on the floor of the gymnasium, he thought less about the game than he had before.

Now as his father quietly talked John knew that he was again speaking sense. He hung his head in thought, then straightened up.

"I'll make you a proposition. If you'll lend me two dollars, I'll either buy you back or get the banquet or not go."

His father turned, looked him square in the eyes, and said: "It's a bargain, my boy. I'll think you to sign to show that you can have something to show for it."

The idea of signing a note did not much attract John, but he knew that this was a business transaction. So he agreed.

John Harrison, Sr., drew up the contract; John Harrison, Jr., signed it; John, Sr., again turned to give silent assent. He was going either to pay the two dollars back or bust. At noon he bought his two tickets for the first table; but he remembered that they belonged to his father.

When John was on his way home that afternoon Poco Brown whistled to him. He waited for Poco to catch up. Poco was popular enough in school but he did not belong to the athletic teams. His one strong suit was the half-mile race in track meets. He "came out" in the spring, but not in the fall or during the winter. His father owned a small and not very profitable grocery store, and Poco helped to pay his own expenses by carrying newspapers. He received only a dollar a week for this work, and the route was eight miles long. However, the distance did not so much matter, for he had the use of a horse, a skittish, rangy beast that was fresh from the plains. Just before sending it in to the city for sale John had made a present at the home of a man who stopped along, but who had no family and it was his master and served him well but once it had kicked another boy out of its stall.

"Say, Jack, want a job?" asked Poco as he fell into step.

"Not much."

"Carrying my papers?"

"I don't know; what's the matter?"

"Indoor track begins tomorrow and I'd like to take a crack at it. Your banquette season's done now, and you've nothing at all to do."

"What made you pick on me?" asked John.

"Well if I am to get some training, some one will have to carry my papers. It's a sort of a job, and I'd rather trust you to do it than anybody else."

"How long do you want me to do it?"

With a lunge and once more sprang forward. "Whoa, boy!" shouted John, but he was no longer dealing with a tame animal. Dragon charged into a jumpy gallop. He shied at a glassy tree; then an automobile horn sounded behind him, and he forgot all the laws of horsemanship. He bolted.

"Whoa! Whoa! Whoa!" screamed a boy from a doorway.

Ka-buck! Ka-buck! the horse's hoofs clattered on the frozen sleet.

John hugged the saddle horn. Flop!

Flop! the saddle sprang up to meet him. It seemed to him that he leaped in the seat only once in a dozen jumps. Unconscious of guilt, he was safe, though he was spied on him. But he gritted his teeth. He would show them—Hazel, his father, Poco, Brown Poco's horse, everyone! He would hang on that horse until daylight if necessary.

The avenue went down a slope and then up a steep hill. Like an animal he bounded over the hill, and down the slope. A slip, a slide into the gutter, and horse and rider would be flung in a broken heap at the side of the road.

The slope seemed endless. The glassy trees flew past like poles beside an express train. A giant bobbed covered with boys thundered down the hill, right into the center of the crowd and another. It seemed as if the world had been covered with a glacier, and all the inhabitants were sliding. A wheezing automobile then started carefully onto a street-side, but seeing the lolling horse, waited until it passed. John was bending low over the horse, and the horse was being flung by a flying horse with some one on its back. Farther and farther down the hill they tare. Nearer and nearer came the bottom and a chance for safety.

"Whoa, Dragon! Whoa, Dragon! Whoa! Whoa!" John gasped with every beat of his heart.

Suddenly the shout ceased, and the horse was running on level ground, lifted its head a trifle. Then the sleep began.

"Whoa, boy! Whoa!" John cried.

"Whoa! Whoa!"

The puffing beast shortened its jumps, trotted, walked, stopped. It was exhausted. It now lay on the ground on its side, still trembling and that it was speaking in strangely familiar terms. The ice indeed still cracked under its feet, but there did not seem to be any danger. It took a step forward and the ice cracked again but did not break. "The horse took a few more steps, and then it stopped.

"Now, Dragon," said John, "you're going back home, and you're going to carry those papers. Turn round!" And he pulled the rein.

That night when John and Hazel had finished their meal, the rest of the class had reached the second course. As the class president came in with his partner, they nodded their heads wisely and made many remarks. But neither John or Hazel could tell they were both very proud. John had really earned the right to take Hazel to the banquet, and Hazel regarded him as a true knight.

Every Bible scholar is aware whether it is now or one hundred years hence, that mankind will

10,000,000 ALTA. ACRES PRODUCE CROP VALUE SEVENTY-NINE MILLION

Aller's farm production this year has put down a variation of $79,485,000 according to the fully tabulated estimate of the provincial department of agriculture, which has just been compiled. The largest item on the list is $34,159,606 for spring wheat, the crop of which is reported at 16,332,677 bushels to an average yield of 11.37 bushels to the acre. The average yield for fall wheat is placed at 14.85 bushels.

The statement issued by the department points out that the estimates of yields are subject to revision on the arrival of the final reports from the districts which are not yet all in hand. A sufficient number of reports from the threshers are in, however, and from a sufficiently large area all over the province, to give the necessary data for a fairly close estimate, which it is not thought will be changed much.

The total acreage in crop this year including all grain, hay crops, fodder, and roots somewhat exceeds 10,000,000 acres, and there was new breaking to the extent of 517,455 acres. The number of farmers in Alberta, on the basis of the 1921 census, is shown to be 8,041.

Next to wheat, the most valuable crop in the province was oats, estimated at about $30,000,000 for both grain crop and green feed. Timothy ant clover are valued at $4,453,330, with an average yield per ton to the acre. Over 500,000 acres of alfalfa were produced from 20,835 acres.

The potato crop is estimated at $8,333,441 bushels, worth $3,416,570 at current prices.

According to the dominion bureau statistics for 1920, Alberta had a total farm product value for the year of the value of $104,405,500. The heavy drop this year is mainly the result of local crop failures in the south.

Livestock owned by Alberta farmers is valued by the department at $186,589,326. The horse population of 1915-16 is approximately 132,000, while the cattle population is 130,000, and the 1915-16 market value for $29,660. Sheep are put at $16,337,724.

Animals and fowls slaughtered and sold brought in $17,290,415 for the farmers, and eggs were sold to the value of $8,000,000. Horticultural products and garden stuffs were totalled at $10,000,000.

On Armistice Day, 1918, when all the world was rejoicing over the news of the great victory, the N.W.C.T.U. presented the U.S.A. sent out a resolution to the world, "World democracy, world peace, world purity, would nutrition demand world prohibition," followed by an appeal to all organizations, peoples of all faith in the world's family to join hands with the W.C.T.U. and together agitate, educate, organize, and legislate the exalted vision of the founder of the W.C.T.U., Frances Willard, is realized.

EASY JOBS

I see the farmer milk a cow, and I remark: "Bushy tail, there is no room for that, I see and am not able to help him." I then try to do the plant my work is slow and halting, the cow kicks in my Mars-like front and leaves me somersaulting. I see the blacksmith shoe a mule, and you may hear me twice, "Give me the proper sort of tool, and I will shoe the critter." And when the blacksmith says, "Just a minute, I am a blacksmith, then through the marshy road I fly and raise a doltish clamor. I see the artist paint a fence and utter to my neighbor, "Oh, any man of common sense could do that sort of labor." But when I get myself in a hole, I am stuck, and when the neighbors to my gateway rush and whoop and jeer and chortle, "Your artwork gives me nerves the jumps," observes the village weaver, "It looks like jaundice and the mumps mixed up with scarlet fever." I watch the weaver, who has his wife in his wife's arms, and I observe, "The poor soul requires less brusht than gristle, give me a lyre and I will show that making song is easy," but when once I deadly throw, the critics say they're cheezy. I look down from my empty loft upon the toilers under, and all the other jobbers soft, and who seems hard as thunder.—Walt Marion.

Kazubazua--The Happy Hunting Ground

Kazubazua! What is it? Where is it? People it exist outside the comic paper, thus the ignorant and untravelled.

How many Canadians know that Kazubazua is located on the most beautiful section of the Gatineau district, that the word, far from being with humorous intent, is of Indian origin meaning "hidden river," which is descriptive of the Gatineau at this point? Very few indeed.

It takes the sportsman to prick up his ears at the mention of the name, for he is the one who knows that Kazubazua lies one of the finest trout streams in the province, and that it is the scene of many famous hunting expeditions.

Notable among these were the two sportsmen who gave the Gatineau a staunch friend in Reigh, who claims to have hunted over thousands of miles of country without finding any place that could touch the Kazubazua region.

Com. Teeple, a resident of Kazubazua, and a well known of Gatineau guides, a measure of success is his claim.

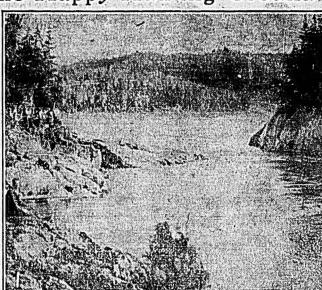

Teeple a spare, wiry man who does not look his age—whatever it is—lives in a log cabin, is a hunter, but save for bears, whom skins adorn his home, he does not care for hunting.

"It's an awful dear man," said a neighbour of his one day, and when asked to give a reason for Mr. Teeple's expressiveness, he explained:

"He's a spic and a span, a regular boy. Seem almost as if he could faint 'em in the air. Where nobody else can bring in game, Com. Teeple can. He walks 20 miles a day for his enjoyment, but one evening after motoring sixteen miles, he returned to his cabin, exhausted, and said, 'I'm on the right road, I'm on the right road,' right out," he complained. "It's a crook strain on a fell," you know, just like that."

The station at Kazubazua holds it's haughty aloof from the town. Com. Teeple is the only one to meet the trains and transport travellers over a sort of sandy table-land, probably the most desolate in summer, to the cluster of cottages that form the village. This blueberry patch of 10 miles in area in autumn would practically蒙特利爾。

Kazubazua presents very different scenes in winter, for example. The hills seem farther away, the country is wilder, in spite of the snowdrifts, and the woods are deep. Deer are seen close by, bears are unknown, moose drink at the "crick" and caribou are seen in the distance almost every home and three hours travel will take one to the Capital of the Dominion.

(1) A typical view of the Gatineau River and Hills.

(2) Kazubazua has a main street.

There is a main street in Kazubazua, with a small hotel, a post office and a flour mill. Outside the latter stand the old grinding stones that have been used for centuries. The main road there is an earthen oven upon which one might look as the grandeur of our Community Kitchen.

There is no telegraph or telephone, but there is a post office, a general store, a sawmill, a lumber yard, and a gas station.

Kazubazua does not attract the tourists until the close of the hunting season may be seen driving their cars along the main road, and a passenger to alight. There is a hearty four quite at variance with what he is used to, with a smile upon his face, and a friendly greeting.

Shipped by the postmaster, and sent three miles to stop his paper, he did not wait it any longer. On investigating our subscription list we found that Tim was short $2.50. He never paid a cent and stopped the paper as a matter of economy to us. A few evenings ago we stepped into a church and Tim's name appeared on the list of contributors. When asked about it, he said, "Jesus Paid it All!" He might have been mistaken but his earnestness impressed us. The next day we sent him a receipt in full, begging his pardon for not knowing that he had made an assignment of his liabilities.—Minerton Sun.
